

The Lies of a Mirror

Though I know it to be a thin pane
Of silvered glass, it contains,
Switched left to right, the room behind me.
It is a lie, without depth .

It shows an almost accurate reflection
Of an unanimated face
Which I know truly from inside -
Almost convincing. But not quite.